FEDERAL BUREAU OF INTELLIGENCE & ART RECLAMATION

OFFICIAL CASE DOSSIER: #DV-992-Gourd

Date: [redacted]

Security Clearance: TOP SECRET // ORCON

Subject: Recovery of the "Lucania" Da Vinci (The Amber Veil)

Location: [redacted] / [redacted]

---

1. OPERATIONAL SUMMARY

The objective of Operation: Vermilion Whisker was the extraction of a lost 16th-century panel painting by Leonardo da Vinci. The artifact was confirmed to be in the possession of Count Alessandro Valerius at his private residence. The operation utilized unconventional camouflage—a chemically stabilized Atlantic Giant pumpkin—to bypass traditional thermal and X-ray scanning.

2. PERSONNEL & CONTACT DATA

Role	Name	Identification / Contact
Lead Field Agent	[redacted]	Badge #7742-ET
Mission Director	[redacted]	[redacted] (Secure Line)
Extraction Lead	[redacted]	[redacted]
Primary Target	[redacted]	[redacted]
Emergency Contact	Valerius Security	[redacted]

3. FIELD LOG: [redacted]

Phase I: Infiltration (01:45 AM)

Agent Thorne successfully breached the perimeter of the Valerius Estate. Environmental factors were suboptimal due to heavy precipitation. A local feline asset, designated Subject: [redacted] was identified as a potential security variable. The subject exhibited territorial behavior but did not immediately compromise the agent's stealth profile.

Phase II: The "Gourdian" Containment (02:15 AM)

Thorne entered the secondary storage facility (the "Shed"). The artifact was housed within a synthetic organic vessel (a preserved pumpkin).

- Technical Note: The vessel used a special resin-bonding agent to prevent the degradation of the organic rind while shielding the internal titanium tube from moisture and standard infrared detection.

Phase III: Technical Extraction (02:40 AM)

Using a high-frequency laser cutter, Thorne breached the vessel. The Da Vinci panel was confirmed authentic via a portable micro-spectroscopy scan. During extraction, Subject [redacted] triggered a Class-3 laser tripwire, alerting the Valerius security detail stationed at [redacted]

[redacted] gaged emergency extraction protocols. Subject [redacted]s detained and removed from the site to prevent forensic linkage to Agency signatures. The team was extracted [redacted]n a modified armored transport.
